

Lucy Eve, Director, Eurasia Group

Lucy works on the firm's geoeconomics coverage, analyzing the intersection of financial markets, global macroeconomics, and politics. She has extensive experience advising clients on how to manage risks in areas such as the US elections, Brexit, and various crises in emerging markets, with a particular focus on Turkey.

Prior to joining Eurasia Group, Lucy worked at Goldman Sachs advising management and traders on how to manage market risk around macroeconomic and political events. She has experience in managing risks related to capital controls and sanctions, and she has worked across various financial asset classes, particularly credit and equity derivatives.
